

“ My first experience with Scott-Moncrieff was when I applied for and was offered a summer position in the Business Advisory Group, between my first and second years at university. I had expectations of spending my summer making tea and filing, but instead was challenged from my first day, preparing accounts for sole traders and small limited companies. From this time I not only gained valuable technical experience but also made many good friends and was made to feel like part of the team from the very beginning. I repeated this work experience in the two summers that followed, each year gaining more practical skills to add to the knowledge that I was gaining from my university studies.

When it came time to apply for graduate positions, I knew that Scott-Moncrieff would be my number one choice. Working with Scott-Moncrieff for the three summers had not only convinced me that I wanted to continue with my accountancy studies, but also that I really enjoyed the working atmosphere at Scott-Moncrieff. It had allowed me to see not only the high quality of client services that they provide, but also the excellent support network they provide for their students, enabling and encouraging them to overcome the challenges of ICAS training.

I didn't realise four years ago that my three month summer placement would turn into a career, but I know that I made the right decision to train with Scott-Moncrieff. I am now well into my training contract and I am thriving on the challenges and responsibilities that my job provides, as well as receiving every possible support for my studies.”

Summer Placements

A bite-sized guide to summer placements with one of Scotland's leading accountancy and professional service firms.

Who are Scott-Moncrieff?

Scott-Moncrieff is a leading, independent professional services firm based in Scotland and can trace its founding roots back to 1792. To give you some historical perspective, Scott-Moncrieff was helping its clients to measure their financial performance and to calculate their taxes around the time when the industrial revolution was just getting into full swing – and a good twenty years or so before Wellington defeated Napoleon at Waterloo!

We are proud of our past, but we are not a firm that dwells on our past endeavours and successes. Through the quality of our people, Scott-Moncrieff has remained at the forefront of the accountancy profession in Scotland because we have continued to evolve to help our clients to manage and overcome the issues they are facing today, whilst anticipating the challenges they will face tomorrow.

Employing over 200 people in two offices in Scotland, and with a further 639 offices in 97 different countries through our association with Moore Stephens International, we provide our clients with a range of services, including audit and assurance, taxation, business advisory, corporate finance and business technology and consulting services.

Our teams work with a wide range of clients spanning the key sectors of Scotland's economy, from entrepreneurial start-ups to established mid-size businesses; from leading financial services organisations to multi-national plcs; and, from not-for-profit organisations and charities to local authorities, NHS Trusts, further and higher education institutions and central government agencies.

We are also an accredited training provider offering a range of professional qualifications in the accountancy field including the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Scotland (ICAS) and the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA).

Where are you heading this summer?

We believe the best way of assessing your ability to work for the firm is by giving you an opportunity to demonstrate what you can do for us and our clients. We offer summer placements in several different service groups and practice areas, including, Tax, Business Advisory Group and our Public Sector practice.

Summer placement students can expect to be involved from day one in every aspect of the departments workload, from preparing cash flows to creating files; looking at tax returns to data cleanses of client details; or helping consultants with client investment portfolios.
